Thanks for picking up the Fall 2006 edition of the JustUsBoys.com Magazine! The magazine you're holding is the biggest issue yet, a full 48 pages of hot men and hot spots online! Fall is a transitional time, so it's fitting that we transition into a larger space with the expansion of one section of the magazine, and the addition of a new department that you'll be seeing in every issue.

First, we've expanded our "Fresh Faces" section to include eight men who've recently made their debut on the Net. It's a one stop shop for the newest hotties online, and we give you all of the details you need to see more.

Next, our brand new "Real Couples" section features real guys who found each other online. In this issue, we talk to Scott & Peter, who met on MassageM4M.com, and who have been together for 2 and a half years. This playful pair shares the details of their relationship and sex life, and offers some advice to other potential couples out there in cyberspace.

In addition to those items, and the usual dozens of not to be missed website reviews, we've got a fantastic trio of feature articles. We had a chance to chat with controversial porn actor Brent Corrigan, who's anxious to put the past year behind him and launch a new site of his own. We also spoke with Bryan Ockert of ChaosMen.com about his start in the gay adult industry, as well as his glossy new book featuring some of his best photographs. Finally, we take a look at hooking up online and offer some tips to keep yourself safe without giving up the fun.

See You On The Net!

MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE OR OLDER

Brian Ockert, the man behind ChaosMen.com spoke with JUB about how he got his start in the industry, his popular website, and his new, glossy coffee table book featuring some of the beautiful men he's photographed over the past several years.

JUB: When did you decide you wanted to become a photographer?

Bryan: I stumbled into it. Seven years ago, I started my own site. It was basically an "ego" site with info about me, a fotojournal, and eventually I added cams all around the house. It was kind of a fun hobby, but then the site got wildly popular and too expensive to handle all the bandwidth it was using up... So I asked some of my hot friends to pose for me and created a small membership area to help cover the expenses. This was back before video could be served up on the Internet, and it was all about photos. Suddenly I was a photographer.

JUB: How do you find your hot models?

Bryan: A lot find my photos and want to work with me. Some come from off the street, and I have a few friends that keep a constant eye out for hot guys.

JUB: Do your models inspire you as an artist?

Bryan: Definitely! If I don't respond to the model in a physical or mental way, the photos are just terrible. Most photographers need 2-3 amazing images from a shoot. I usually have to come up with 30-40 solid images for a gallery. If I can't come up with 2-3 good shots from a shoot, then I ain't feeling it from the model.

JUB: What has been your experience with running a popular website?

Bryan: I am pretty much doing everything that you see on the site. From managing models, their travel, web and graphic design, advertising, shooting and editing video, photoshoots... Hell, I'm even the tech support department, handling all member issues. It's a lot for one guy to do. But, I eat, drink and sleep the site, and wouldn't do it if I didn't love every minute of it.

JUB: What was your inspiration for publishing the book?

Bryan: I wanted to do something that the other sites haven't done. I wanted the book to be different even from other coffee table books, right down to the cover shot. Most male nude books have shirtless guys with muscles rippling. But I'm known for the intimate face shots and the intense looks I can get out of models. I think having Puma looking right into you is ten times better than a set of abs. So the cover doesn't even follow the tried and true formula. So I guess my inspiration was to do something different.

JUB: Why did you choose to self publish the book?

Bryan: Control. I've not always liked the way other companies have published my images. This way if it doesn't turn out the way I like, it will be my fault. I put the book together without even a thought about distributing. I figured fans of the site would buy it, and that would be my market. After putting it together and promoting it on only my site, I had a major distributor contact me to distribute in all their major outlets. I was like, "I can do that?" I was thinking pretty small.

JUB: Has it always been your goal to publish a book of your work?

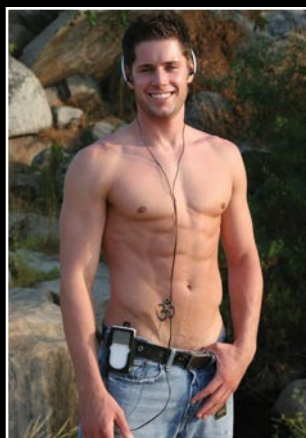

Bryan: No. I've really only wanted to make photos for the fans of my site and me. But every week I would get people telling me the stuff was great, and I should sell prints or make a book. Finally, after years, my friend Bill basically hit me over the head and said, "It's time. I will put it together if you can narrow it down to 300 images." We were supposed to get it down to 100 images, like most books, but it's twice the size of others, with 220 images. I had so many good images that I felt needed to be in the book, I couldn't restrain myself!

JUB: What do fans of your website have to look forward to in the future from ChaosMen.com?

Bryan: Thinking outside of the box. The 'edge' videos take a tried and true formula and turns it upside down. I'm looking to do that and more. I want to make videos that are more psychologically arousing, rather than going for "plot" or other formulas that have been done.

JUB: What is the one thing that fans of your work would be surprised to know about you?

Bryan: That my parents are likely my biggest fans.

JUB: Where can readers find the new book?

Bryan: My site of course, where I will autograph a copy for anyone buying from there. But thanks to the distributor, it can be found at most major e-tailers, including TLAVideo.com, Amazon.com, Borders, and even your local gay bookstore.

Brent Corrigan

Focusing on the Future

JUB recently sat down with porn actor Brent Corrigan to discuss his chaotic year and plans for the future. Fresh from an emcee appearance at a charity event for Community United against Violence in San Francisco, Brent seemed hopeful about an end to the hysteria brought about by revelations that he was underage when he filmed various gay adult titles for Cobra Video. He's clearly anxious to move on, and has been hard at work on his site, BrentCorriganOnline.com, in the hopes of turning his controversial career as an actor into one as a successful porn producer.

It was September of 2005 when Brent revealed to the world that he was 17 years old when he performed in 4 hardcore titles for Cobra, not 18 years old as the law requires. Brent claims that an ex boyfriend pushed him to create a fake ID to find work in the gay adult industry, and it wasn't long before he was the toast of twink porn... bottoming like an experienced professional while flashing his trademark smile and strategically located star tattoo.

The ensuing drama reached a high point in February of this year when Cobra filed a federal lawsuit against Brent for breach of contract and trademark infringement, among other things. One of the claims involves ownership of the name "Brent Corrigan" itself, which leaves Brent's continued use of the name and domain names up in the air. He recently completed a movie for Falcon called The Velvet Mafia under the stage name "Fox Rider," but he believes he'll prevail in the name dispute and plans to continue his career as "Brent Corrigan."

In The Velvet Mafia, Brent appears with a large cast of well known Falcon exclusives, and enjoys a hot, hardcore scene with 2005 GayVN Newcomer of the Year, Roman Heart. Chi Chi LaRue and Paul Baressi make appearances in the film as well. Released on September 29, the film is available directly from Brent's site.

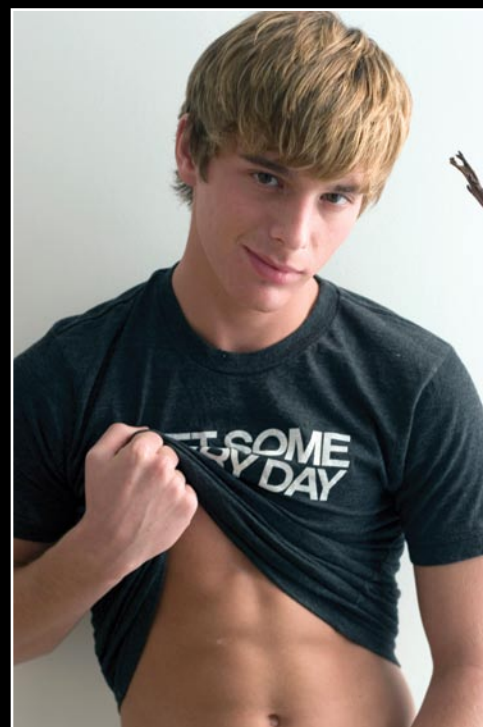

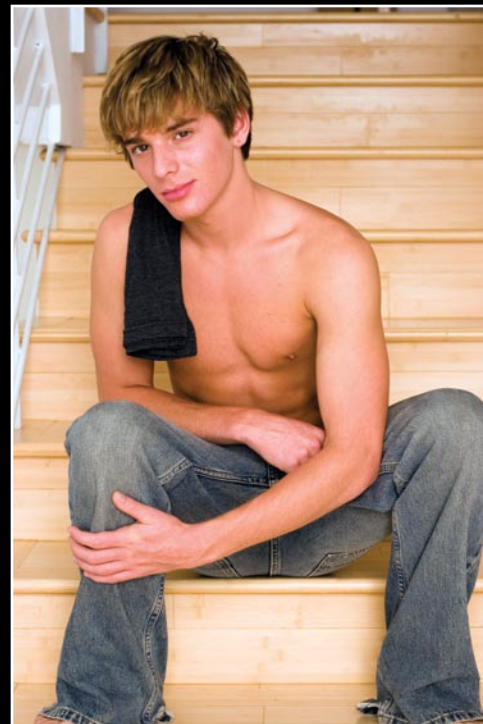

Anyone who's a regular reader of Brent's blog on BrentCorriganOnline.com knows that he has legions of loyal, adoring fans. Brent hopes this fan base will appreciate his next major project, "RealBoysOnline," which he's putting together for an early 2007 release. His goal with the new site is to produce what he calls, a "more sincere" genre of porn that focuses on the intimacy between couples who really are into each other, rather than randomly cast by a director. He's chronicled his foray into production in numerous blog posts, giving his perspective as a 19 year old porn director, along with behind the scenes photos from some of his shoots.

It's on his blog that his fans have come to know him as an intelligent, articulate 19-year-old, whose life in the fast lane hasn't been all its cracked up to be. He takes great pride in the blog, particularly the "Ask Brent" section, where he answers questions about everything from his personal life, to the coming out process, to how to properly shave your backside.

He also has some advice for other young men who are considering work in the gay adult industry. "Trust your instincts, and don't be afraid to walk away if you don't feel completely comfortable" he says. "Remembering that you have the power to say no, empowers you to say yes."

Real Couples

Peter & Scott

Peter Moorr is a massage therapist certified through Body Electric School, a trained breath worker and sacred intimate. He was raised on a farm in New Jersey; then came out in the tumultuous post Stonewall era of 1970's New York City.

Scott Gable is a hot, 45 year old, happily partnered, Certified Massage Therapist living in Los Angeles, CA. Midwest city born and raised, Scott has lived in Los Angeles since 1994 and considers himself a true "Angelino".

JUB: How did you meet?

Scott: We met on MassageM4M.com and arranged a massage exchange; which is ongoing to this day. I liked Peter's profile, read all of his reviews and decided I wanted to check him out to see if he was really as good as he looked. He was, indeed. We moved in together 6 months later.

JUB: How long have you been together?

Peter: Our 3-year anniversary will be February 17, 2007. We moved in together after 6 months but held on to Scott's apartment in West Hollywood for the first year. Letting go of the apartment, merging our "stuff", getting rid of old baggage and buying "new stuff" together was truly the next level of commitment. (Plus, we didn't want our friends to think we were crazy lesbians with trailers on the first date!)

JUB: How do you inspire each other?

Scott: "Give me a hammer! One of the most challenging aspects of our relationship is that we live together, have a business together, work out together, have the same friends and spend most of our free time together. He is the detailed "numbers" guy and I am the big idea and "let's change everything" guy. I have lists of projects I want to do and he shows me QuickBooks pie charts on why we can't...YIKES! In other words, I think we inspire each other because we compliment each other and seem to "rein the other in". I get him to do things he wouldn't normally do and he keeps me from going overboard.

Peter: "The first thing Scott inspired me to do was to take my nose off the grindstone from time to time. I can get over-focused on work."

JUB: What the one misconception (if any) that people make about you as a couple and or individually?

Peter: On the surface and in print, we appear as "Mean Mother Fuckers". In truth, we are two of the most open, nurturing and accessible guys you will ever meet.

Scott: The fact is, I am outwardly friendly and open but fairly direct and this can put people off if they don't know me. On the other hand, Peter, who looks like he has been recently paroled, is a big pussycat.

Peter: We both really carry "the Daddy Archetypal" energy.

JUB: What's something that people would be surprised to learn about you.

Scott: I played bass violin in the St. Louis Junior Symphony; I was a District Manager for a chain of women's clothing stores; I designed Yellow-Page ads; I danced as a boom-box-carrying stripper at bachelorette parties under the stage-name "Gino"; I escaped my own "Big Fat Greek Wedding" in 1991; I am more "vanilla" than you would expect.

Peter: I was married for 2 years to my high school sweetheart; I met my first lover at the Mineshaft in New York City; I was a women's shoe buyer in Princeton, NJ; I taught Flogging in Phoenix; I lived at an Ashram in India; I've lived in the same house in Los Angeles for over 20 years.

JUB: Do you ever have any disagreements?

Scott: Oh please... the important fact here is that I am always right. Seriously, we are a pretty good match but when the levee breaks, the cat hides under the chair! We rarely have verbal disagreements but when we do, they don't last.

Peter: Where there is passion there is passion. Knowing how to cool down, reframe what is going on, finding what is underneath the disagreement and talking about it is key. But basically, Scott is right about everything... erase that!!

JUB: How often do you have sex with each other?

Scott: 5-7 times per week - Peter has the QuickBooks pie charts to prove it!

Peter: We enjoy daily sex and also look for special times to spend together that include massage/sling play and a more intimate connection.

JUB: Any last words for other professional couples in biz?

Scott: It's all about boundaries and communication. The main reason our relationship works so well, besides the fact that we are BOTH very "erotically charged" pigs, is that we tell each other what we want, we share everything, we talk about our boundaries and we don't cross them.

Peter: Make sure you both know what your priorities are; make sure you know what your boundaries are; make sure you REALLY like being with people and that you are willing to share who YOU are.

Looking For Mr. Right... RIGHT NOW

There was a time when “hooking up” meant heading out to a bar or club, dropping your hard earned cash on overpriced drinks and making tedious conversation in the search for “the one.” Nowadays, you can turn on your PC and sift through thousands of people in seconds, sorting them by interest, body type, dick size, or any other feature that’s important to you. People still frequent the bars of course, but there’s no denying that connecting online is the fastest (and fastest growing) way to meet guys.

As the dating industry has matured over the past few years, new sites have popped up to cater to specific interests, giving users more choice than ever before. With a bit of searching, you should have no trouble finding a site that matches both your personality and your mood. And while the majority of dating sites on the gay side of the business seem to be geared toward casual sex, there are options for the more relationship minded among us.

We’ve reviewed dozens of websites offering gay dating services of one kind or another to come up with this list of the standout sites that should merit a look. Keep in mind that in addition to sites devoted solely to gay dating, many of the big mainstream sites have a significant gay clientele. For instance, both AOL and Yahoo Personals are respectable options for gay men looking to connect with others.

ManHunt.net

ManHunt.net is a massive community of men in search of their next hot hook up. Their slogan (Get On. Get Off.) says a lot about the site’s purpose, but with tens of thousands of members, there really is something for everyone.

BigMuscle.com

Very popular with guys sporting fine physiques, BigMuscle has thousands of members and is completely free.

Adam4Adam.com

Another free offering that’s very popular with urban, African American and Latino men.

BigMuscleBears.com

Brought to you by the guys behind BigMuscle.com, this free site caters to bears and their admirers.

BiggerCity.com

A web community for chubby gay men and their chasers with both free and unrestricted paid accounts available.

Gay.com

You really can’t have a list of gay dating sites without mentioning the site that started it all. It’s still probably the largest of the bunch with tens of thousands of users online at all times of the day.

Craigslist.com

Thousands of men use Craig’s List to hookup everyday. There are no profiles here, it’s just a big classified ad system that’s completely old school, but it’s free and very popular.

RentBoy.com

While not a typical dating site, RentBoy does help guys find each other for sex and bodywork.

Tips for Successful Online Connections:

Be honest!

Lots of people are gun shy about online hookups because the Internet has a way of encouraging people to lie about themselves. Don’t say your looking for a long term relationship when you really want a sex buddy, and don’t inflate your own stats. The aim is to actually meet real, live people who will quickly determine whether or not you’ve been honest.

Highlight Your Best Assets!

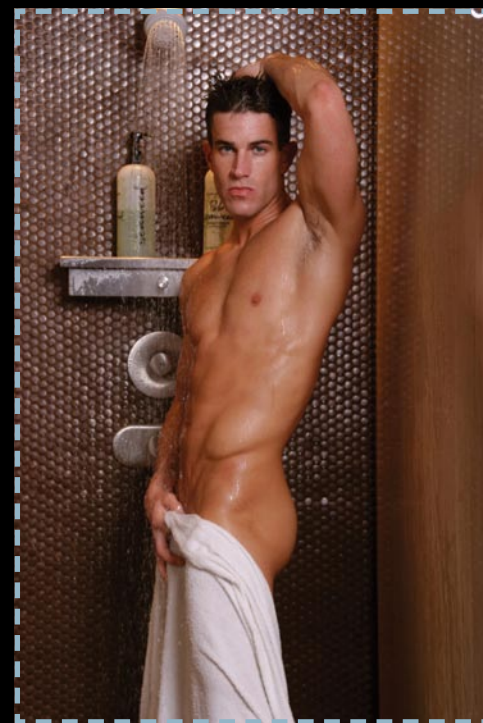

There’s no time for modesty in this game. If you’ve got a great ass... show it off. Handsome face? Flash those pearly whites. Delectable cock? Whip it out. Often your photo will be the only thing potential hook ups will use to make a choice about you. Consider having a professional photographer take a few great photos for you to post. It shouldn’t cost a lot of money and could make all the difference in getting the attention you deserve. Larger cities even have photographers that specialize in Internet dating photos. For example, Studioguyz.com, located in Los Angeles, provides high quality photos that can help get hits. You can also find a generous listing of photographers on Rentboy.com. Click on the photographer link on the home page.

Be Safe!

There’s no shortage of crazy people in the world... whether online or off. You don’t want to run into one of them so take these few precautions to stay out of trouble...

Tips To Keep It Safe...

- Do not give out your primary e-mail address. Use a separate, free e-mail address rather than your work or home e-mail address.
- Block unwanted messages by utilizing the block feature found on many hook up sites.
- Meet in public or neutral places like a bar or coffee shop, especially at first. Consider bringing a friend who will have no problem getting lost if your hookup is a score.
- Trust your instincts. If something ‘feels off’, it probably is.
- Don’t give out your home address or telephone number until you’re convinced you can trust the person.
- If you plan to meet a stranger for sex, be prepared and take condoms.
- Let a friend or family member know what you’re up to and keep copies of your communications.

CIRCLE JERK BOYS

Vinnie and Mauricio

Three years after meeting on the set, Vinnie and Mauricio are building a life together...

JUB: How did you two meet?

V&M: We grew up in the same area but we really "met" as adults on the set of CircleJerkBoys and guess you could say we really got to know each other there in a way we could have never expected.

JUB: We heard that you both dated women in a previous life. Did either of you actually know that you wanted to be in a relationship with a man?

V&M: It's not easy for anyone growing up to deal with gay feelings but especially not for us, coming from religious Latin homes. We both did a pretty good job of suppressing those feelings until we were out of the house. So now, it's just the opposite. It's almost surreal to think that we ever had relationships with women in the past!

JUB: How long have you been together?

V&M: It is going on 3 years now... damn where did the time go, but 3 years!

JUB: Do you live together?

V&M: We moved in together almost 2 years ago. That was a real growing experience. Spending all your time together is one thing, but we both work at the same place too. We are together all the time. We still have our own friends and work in different departments, but we are as together as two people can get.

JUB: How have your family and friends delt with your decision to be together?

V&M: We are both very fortunate as we have a lot of support and acceptance from both of our families. The biggest shock was coming out to them. We were already together so they sort of got a double dose at once. I actually think it made it easier because they felt safer knowing we are a monogamous couple and it helped that we were both Catholic and Latino. They still worry about us. And, sure, they would rather us be in a heterosexual relationship, but they are glad we are not out there as single gay men right now. I guess you could sum it up by saying that they feel since we are gay, we picked the right partner. We are very lucky that way and never take that for granted!

JUB: You guys knew each other from the same neighborhood and played basketball together. Did you fantasize about each other?

V&M: Not really. At the time, neither one of us acknowledged any feeling we had for men. We had girls at the time and worked hard to try and make it work.

JUB: Is there anything sexually you guys do with each other that you wouldn't have thought about doing with another man back in those earlier days?

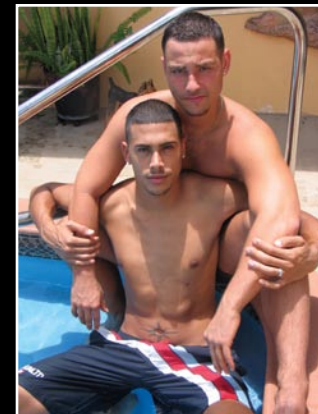

V&M: That's a funny question because everyone thinks about what sex would be like. But, what we never thought about was... kissing another guy. We love to kiss and can make each other cum just from kissing sometimes. A combination of French and Greek makes the best orgasms for us both.

JUB: How did you two end up in the porn biz?

V&M: Probably like most guys. We needed some extra money so we answered an ad in the paper, separately of course. We were nervous and we heard the stories but it was very professional. We were made to feel very at ease and appreciated. It wound up being a good experience and we both discovered that we liked being on camera.

JUB: Do you actually credit CircleJerkBoys for putting the two of you together?

V&M: We both responded to the same ad within a week of each other. We had no idea each other called but we are damn glad they called us back. We are even more glad that they later asked if we would try a scene with another guy in the room. That is when we realized we were both shooting for CircleJerkBoys. Then we did the falling in love part. But yeah, CircleJerkBoys did play matchmaker for us.

JUB: What's a typical day like for you two as a couple?

V&M: A typical day is pretty boring: breakfast, shower, drive together to work, meet up for lunch, drive home together, hit the gym, hit the "sheets", dinner, a little TV then to bed.

JUB: Do you both still do movies?

V&M: We have been shooting exclusively for CircleJerkBoys for the last two years. We live off our regular jobs, but are saving the money from CircleJerkBoys to to use as a downpayment on a condo.

JUB: So what is next for you guys? Any plans?

V&M: We would both like to get our master's degrees and have our own business together.

JUB: What's one thing from both of you that your fans would be surprised to know?

V&M: Sometimes on a Saturday night, we will stay home and, this sounds so queer... we will ballroom dance together right in the living room.

WHO'S IN YOUR BED?

Spotlight On RentBoy.com

"Money can't buy you love, but the rest is negotiable." -Dean Johnson (Velvet Mafia)

What started as a modest website offering an international listing service for escorts, body workers, models and escort agencies, has grown into one of the largest free online male escort directories on the Internet. Originally based in New York City, Rentboy has grown exponentially with offices now in Los Angeles and Madrid. Rentboy.com hosts over 40,000 escorts and body workers worldwide in more than 250 locations. The site has received 11 international awards, gets more than 50,000 hits every day and has had more than 17 million visitors since it rolled out July 1st 1997.

The guiding philosophy behind RentBoy is that an educated consumer is the best customer. Another goal of the site was to create a place online for the 'sex workers' who had no other outlet to reach their potential clients. Workers can showcase uncensored photos of themselves and display their 'best assets', details of their availability, the services they offer and even promote their videos. Potential clients can see exactly what they are going to get using these detailed ads. Clients who are shopping around or existing clients who wish to share their experiences can utilize the new escort review site rentboyreviews.com. Each advertiser on RentBoy has a 'Review Me' button on their page where past clients can rate their experience.

Rolling out later this year will be Rentboy v5.0 which will feature a major design face lift and newly improved search engine. Other improvements include an easier navigation for the site's visitors.

A man is lying down, smiling, with a small television on his chest. The TV screen shows two men kissing. The text "PROJECT MALE" is prominently displayed in large, bold letters, with "MEN WHO LOVE MEN ON CAM!" written below it. The website address "WWW.PROJECTMALE.COM" is also visible.

SEX SO HOT IT BURNS!

Summer has proven to be a very busy season here at JustUsBoys. We kicked it off with a booth at LA Pride in June, where we introduced our free DVD to rave reviews.

In July, we headed to San Diego where we joined in on their Pride celebration, and kept JUB spokesmodel Jason Hawke very busy signing autographs for hundreds of fans.

On Labor Day weekend we made the trip to New Orleans for Southern Decadence, and we're happy to report that the Big Easy did not disappoint! Last year's event was cancelled due to Hurricane Katrina, but it didn't stop thousands of people from coming back this year for an amazing weekend filled with fun and debauchery. Be sure to check out the JUB Blog for our pictures from this event.

We found ourselves back in Los Angeles in September for the Gay Erotic Expo. We love these events because with so many porn stars under one roof, you can count on some very naughty and entertaining times. If you'll be in New York in December, you won't want to miss the NYC Gay Erotic Expo from the 16th to the 17th. Stop by our booth to say hi and meet Jason Hawke!

Finally, we're happy to have joined up with Freshmen Magazine on their 15th anniversary cub tour. Check the schedule below and get the details on our events page online: www.jubmag.com/events.html
